5th annual National Trans Health Conference

ATLANTA, GEORGIA – Save the dates and celebrate “Transgender Wholeness: Mind, Body & Spirit” at the 5th Annual, 2018 National Trans Health Conference on November 8th, 9th and 10th, 2018 at the Hilton Atlanta Airport in Atlanta, Georgia.

Hosting organization, Someone Cares Inc., a 501 (c) (3) non-profit, is a community-based organization inviting you to attend and participate in this informative and educational gathering. The three-day conference agenda will feature prominent national and international keynote speakers as well as a host of professional presenters who are leaders in a variety of health fields: including primary care, mental health, substance abuse, legal services, community advocacy and various forms of gender transition based medical care. “As we continue adapting to change on a local and national level, it is important for us to highlight and explore, through dialogue and education, the best practices that benefit Trans lives on a holistic level,” shared Ronnie Bass, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Someone Cares Inc.

As the largest Transgender servicing organization in the Southeastern United States, Someone Cares’ R.E.A.L. / T. (Reaching, Educating, Assisting, and Liberating Trans) program is created to assist the Trans community in garnering respect in a society that too often writes them off. The goal of the R.E.A.L.T. program is to provide a safe space to empower transgender individuals to seek higher education, job placement, housing, skill building, physical and mental health by reaching them where they are.

Register now and take advantage of the early bird special at www.s1catl.org. Join with us as we continue to build on the continually needed awareness of the Trans community from a health, legal, social and advocacy perspective. Help us in our effort to exemplify what acceptance look and feels like as we promote education on services and trends critical to our community’s needs and forge new solutions to meet the challenges of our time.

The line-up of speakers will include industry specific professionals dealing with community mental health issues, medical health disparities, social stigma, HIV/AIDS and other STTs, online social media, Transgender community data collection and all the things Transgender! Opportunities for sponsorships, exhibit booths and program advertisements are available. For submission of abstracts and hotel reservations, please visit www.s1catl.org and keep up-to-date on this 2018 conference.

The three-day conference is open to all -- including health professionals, public health and public policy graduates, health and social activists, church ministries, doctors, nurses, pharmaceuticals, and the trans community. Continuing education credits for health professionals, nurses and social workers will be offered at the conference. Sponsors receive exposure through press releases and social media, in addition to direct access, as well as one on one interaction with exhibitors, speakers and members of the transgender demographic.
